DYSPEPSIA.

IS that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a bilious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fleshy and phlegmatic have Constipation, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.
Whatever form Dyspepsia may take, one thing is certain,
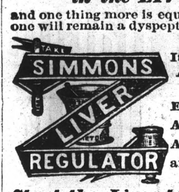
The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing more is equally certain, no one will remain a dyspeptic who will



It will correct Acidity of the Stomach, Expel foul gases, Allay Irritation, Assist Digestion, and, at the same time
Start the Liver to working, when all other troubles soon disappear.

"My wife was a confirmed dyspeptic. Some three years ago by the advice of Dr. Steiner, of Augusta, she was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I feel grateful for the relief it has given her, and may all who read this and are afflicted in any way, whether chronic or otherwise, use Simmons Liver Regulator and I feel confident health will be restored to all who will be advised."—WM. PIANOS.

GAINED FIRST PREMIUM FOR GREATEST merit at the New Orleans Cotton Centennial and WORLD'S Exposition for refined and wonderful power of tone, elegance of design, and superb finish. Duly piano endorsed by United States commissioners, from each of the States. Cases finest carved, rosewood finish—finest imported double repeating action—three strings throughout of best patent steel wire—keys best ivory. Our new patent steel tuning device, instead of wood, is the greatest invention ever made in pianos. It consists of stationary STEEL tuning pins that are set in a mold and molten STEEL is run round the pins keeping them solidly in place. A thimble or shell pin is made to exactly fit the stationary pin revolving therein; thus the strings wind round the pins. After the strings are properly stretched the piano can never get out of tune, the rest plank being of STEEL not affected by extremes of climate. This will be be appreciated by all musicians in city or country. It will stand twenty years without tuning and is good for 100. No other piano has this improvement.
Great strength and durability is another advantage. In other pianos holes are bored in wooden boards and tuning pins inserted. The pins turn round in this board and cannot stand permanently in tune, and it often cracks, splits, dry s out, becoming utterly, totally and entirely worthless as a musical instrument. Our STEEL tuning device is in no way affected by such casualities, and the sounding board is so constructed that our pianos can never become thin or metallic in tone. They are always in tune and the expense of tunning is saved. This patent alone is worth millions, and makes our piano the greatest in the world. Prices are no higher than other pianos. Buying direct from us, the largest manufacturers, you save $100 or $200—dealers' profits. Don't mind the ominous growlings of dealers and agents, who see their chances of selling a poor piano at a big profit of $200—slipping away—pity them.
We guarantee our pianos ten years. 200 styles. We have put our prices at lowest bed-rock for Cash.

A $600 Piano for $259.50; a $900 Piano for $297 50; a $1200 Piano for $375.50; a $1500 Piano for $475.50.

Upright Cabinet Grands, with steel and rubber cover shipped on board cars at S. F., to any part of the United States, Canada or Mexico. Our terms are cash with order. If not as represented money returned. We occasionally have good second-hand pianos, made over at $100 to $300, which we take in part payment for our own. Write or call for catalogue, free.

SLEEP.

A goddess with sealed eyes and restful air,
And mind forever plunged in mystery deep,
Whose influence (ever courted) is so rare—
And so delightful whose all fostering care,
That youth and age alike bow down to Sleep.

A sovereign, wearing on her regal head
A diadem of rustic poppy blooms,
Whose aureole of deep, lack luster red,
Unto her pallid cheeks and forehead wed,
The aspect of a royal crown assumes.

Oh! for one night within her sheltering arm,
"My kingdom and my horse"—you both may keep;
But bar me not outside that potent charm,
That season of inertia, deep and warm—
Nay, strip me treasureless, but leave me—Sleep!

"Sleep, that knits up the raveled sleave of care"—
Sleep, that annuls the pain of gnawing woe—
Sleep! sovereign Sleep! ah, influence sweet and fair!
Who would exchange for aught thy pleasures rare,
Or for Arabia's wealth thy balm forego?

If in exchange to me were offered gold—
The treasury of kings and earthly dross;
Or mines of silver'd Potosi untold—
To her alone would I still blindly hold,
And let them slide, and count their mull no loss.

Sleep! gentle influence—Sleep! best gift of God;
Most precious of the many gifts and deep
He gives, to salve the bruise left by the rod—
* * * The last, long sleep beneath the budding sod—
For, oh! "he giveth his beloved—Sleep!"
—Philadelphia Ledger.

GOOD JOKE ON THE BOYS.

"Pull—pull! There's a big snake ahead of us! A little stronger on your left oar. Pull, you beggar! Let's catch him!" cried Mr. Tom Johnson, hauling his trolling line in hand over hand and nodding his head frantically to indicate the whereabouts of the reptile. Mr. William Acornick, who was doing the rowing, turned his head over his shoulder and gazed ahead.

"It's not a snake—its a stick," he said contemptuously, but increased the force of his strokes.

"Bosh! A stick! Who ever saw a stick run like that? A stick with a mouth on it, and a forky tongue going in and out! Bosh! Who ever saw a stick racing along with a wake behind it? It's a big water snake, I tell you! Why don't you pull? Pull! Gracious! he'll get ashore if you don't."

"Well, s'pose he does. What harm's he doing? Did he ever say anything against either of us? Hasn't a snake as good a right to live as you or me?"

"old boys" would haul "the boys" out of the tent. There the morning fish lay in beauty side by side on the brown rock. Then came the congratulations that constituted the old boys' reward, that swelled their stout chests with pride and sent them out next morning, rain or shine, to win the praise they affected to despise.

* * * * * * *

Turning again to look at the snake, Acornick suddenly put all his strength into his strokes, and the cedar skiff fairly flew through the brown water. "Tom," said he, "Tom Johnson, here is a chance for a big joke on the boys."

"Fetch the snake ashore and throw it on 'em?" cried Johnson.

"That's the ticket, old man. Golly, won't they howl!" and in a few moments the boat was close alongside the reptile. Instead of diving his snakeship carried a high head, incessantly wavering from side to side, as if in thought of trying some other line of escape, but still glided along straight for the wooded island on the lee of which were all parties to this affair. His arrowy tongue quivered in and out continually, and as the old boys reached him they saw that he was indeed a big fellow, some six feet long, mottled in very dark brown patches, with a wicked looking, yellow, flattened head.

"Maybe it's a rattlesnake," cried Acornick in alarm.

"Rattlesnake be hanged—the rattlesnakes were all killed off these islands years ago. It's just some harmless snake. Let drive at him with the oar."

Instead of doing so Acornick struck the snake smartly a few inches behind the head with the iron rim of a landing net. It collapsed instantly, wallowed as if fatally hurt, and in a few moments was lifted into the boat and tucked completely into the net. While the two old boys, who knew next to nothing about snakes, were discussing his markings, sagely and secretly admiring one another for the prodigious courage they had displayed, the reptile writhed a little, but remained apparently well and truly killed.

"I'll bet you $5 it's a water snake," said Acornick.

"I'll bet you $10 it isn't. I'll bet you it's a land snake. I'll bet you $20 it's a garter snake or else a milk snake."

"Or maybe a hoop snake," suggested Acornick in a propitiatory voice, as if staggered by the confidence of his (Johnson's) assertions.

"No matter what it is," said Johnson, feeling the triumph of superior knowledge, "it'll be a grand joke on those lazy fellows."

Then Acornick deposited the landing net in the bow, threw a coat over its mouth to keep the snake inside and turned for the camp with glee.

"I'll take the oars now if you like," said Johnson, and they changed places with more ease than might have been expected from two such wide men, clasping one another just in the middle of the skiff and shifting past adroitly the next instant.

"Put out the spoon, why don't you?" said Johnson as he took the oars.

"We've only got two bass yet."

"All right. Maybe we'll pick up a 'lunge on the way in."

A 'lunge is always a Georgian bay possibility, but to take one is luck like finding a paying gold mine.

"I've got him!" cried Acornick, in a few minutes.

"Well, hang on to him; don't make such an outrageous fuss about it." These two brethren of the gentle art lost few opportunities to hector one another.

"I've got him and he's a sockdolager!" cried Acornick. Away behind the boat a white streak leaped twice into the air.

"It's a 'lunge—a whale of a 'lunge," cried Johnson. "You'll never land him in the world. I'll bet you a hat you don't."

"Pull out into deep water—out, I say—give me a chance—I'll take your bet—ten hats if you like—pull out—out from the shore. What are you loafing with those oars for? Gracious how he pulls!"

Just then something meandered down the bottom of the skiff from between Johnson's feet.

"The snake! the snake's alive!" cried Acornick. Johnson made a stamp at the reptile and missed. Acornick, bothered by the 'lunge, could not seize anything to strike his snakeship with, so he violently thrust his feet straight at the creature's open mouth and forky tongue. At that the snake turned back toward Johnson, who seized a stretcher and, striking cleverly at the reptile's head, laid it out limp once more. Then they put him back in the net and placed it again in the bow.

"Lost the 'lunge!" cried Acornick, hauling at his slack line in disgust.

"Ten hats," said Johnson. "Number seven and a quarter. Rogeen's best."

"Snakes were barred. I'd look well paying ten hats in these circumstances. You should pay for the 'lunge. You would have the confounded snake," cried Acornick.

"I?"

"Yes, you."

"I! I'd have him?"

"Yes, you. Always going fooling with snakes and things."

"I?"

"Yes, you, sir!"

"Well, that's a good one. Wasn't it you that"——

"Oh, never mind. Anyhow it'll be a good joke on the boys."

"Yes, if you don't blab about losing the 'lunge. Oh, by gracious," cried Johnson, "if only I'd had the luck to hook that 'lunge."

By this time they were close to the shore of Governor's Island, and might have been heard by the boys had these lazy fellows been on the alert.

Without hooking another fish they soon reached the landing place, and lifting out the snake in the net laid it for a moment on the flat rock, while they hauled up the skiff very quietly so as not to awaken the boys.

When they turned ashore the snake had crawled out and was making at a great rate for the interior. Once more they struck him limp and then they marched on tip toe for the tent, their fat sides shaking with suppressed laughter at the ruction which they expected to ensue when the six feet snake was laid across the sleeping forms. They would draw it out full length, so they planned, over the blankets of Jack Burritt and Bob Bolton and Jimmy Smith. The surprise and horror of those youths would be extremely amusing. To them this would be a lesson on the wrongfulness of sleeping late in the morning. Also, Jack Burritt should learn that others could carry out capital practical jokes as well as he.

"Hush-sh-sh-sh," said Acornick.

"Hsh-sh yourself," retorted Johnson.

"What a joke on the boys," whispered Acornick.

They were now almost at the door of the tent.

"No, you don't," suddenly cried Jack Burritt. Then the flap was thrown open and the three "boys" rushed outside with huge laughter.

"Thunder and lightning—its a copperhead!" cried Jack, starting away with horror in every feature.

"A copperhead?" cried the two old boys in chorus.

"A copperhead," repeated Johnson, flinging away his net.

"A copperhead," shouted Acornick, darting behind the boys.

"Yes, a most monstrous copperhead," roared Jack Burritt.

"Poisonous?" cried Acornick.

"Poisonous! Well, I should say so. Why, his mere touch is poison."

"Heavens, what shall I do?" cried Johnson; "I touched him twice. Oh, my gracious, isn't this horrible," and his teeth chattered together.

"I touched him, too," shouted Acornick in equal consternation.

"Well, this is dreadful, dreadful," said Jack solemnly. "My, my, I'm sorry for you both."

"Jack, Jack, for goodness sake, isn't there anything?"

"Nothing but whisky's any use, I'm afraid, and there's not a drop in the camp—so you said this morning."

"Yes, yes; I've a little for medicine left," cried Acornick.

"Oh, but I forgot; it's only for copperhead bites that whisky's any use," groaned Jack. "You touched the snake."

"Maybe they didn't touch it on the most poisonous places," suggested Bob Bolton.

"Oh, pshaw, what are you giving us?" cried Acornick, suddenly recovering spirit. "It's impossible to get poisoned by just touching a snake."

"Put out the spoon, why don't you?" said Johnson as he took the oars. "We've only got two bass yet."

"All right. Maybe we'll pick up a 'lunge on the way in."

"Yes, a most monstrous copperhead," roared Jack Burritt.

"Poisonous?" cried Acornick.

"Poisonous! Well, I should say so. Why, his mere touch is poison."

"Heavens, what shall I do?" cried Johnson; "I touched him twice. Oh, my gracious, isn't this horrible," and his teeth chattered together.

"I touched him, too," shouted Acornick in equal consternation.

"Well, this is dreadful, dreadful," said Jack solemnly. "My, my, I'm sorry for you both."

"Jack, Jack, for goodness sake, isn't there anything?"

"Nothing but whisky's any use, I'm afraid, and there's not a drop in the camp—so you said this morning."

"Yes, yes; I've a little for medicine left," cried Acornick.

"Oh, but I forgot; it's only for copperhead bites that whisky's any use," groaned Jack. "You touched the snake."

"Maybe they didn't touch it on the most poisonous places," suggested Bob Bolton.

"Oh, pshaw, what are you giving us?" cried Acornick, suddenly recovering spirit. "It's impossible to get poisoned by just touching a snake."

"Of course it is," protested Johnson. "Ye-es, it is, ch?" said Jack, eying them and stroking his head sadly. "Did you never hear of a man getting poisoned by just touching a toad?"

"That's so," groaned the old boys together.

"There's only one chance—hot water, boiling hot. Plunge your hands into it, and keep 'em there as long as you can. That's the only chance. No matter if it scalds the skin off," cried Jack. "Hurry down to the cook's camp."

In a moment they were scrambling down hill to where Hermidas, the half-breed cook, had his pots and pails and fire. He furnished instantly a pailful of boiling water, into which Acornick and Johnson eagerly plunged their hands. With shrieks they withdrew them. Then Jack interfered.

"If it's as hot as that I guess you're all right now," said he.

"Do you think so? Are you sure, Jack?" asked the old boys.

"Yes, I'm sure," said Jack gravely, after examining carefully their red wrists. "The poison's been dissolved. You may be a little sick this afternoon, that's all. Let's go back now and look at the snake."

When they got there the reptile had again begun to crawl away.

"Well, dear me," cried Jack, with an air of utter astonishment, after striking the snake on the head, "I believe it isn't a copperhead after all. Now, I come to think of it, there are no true copperheads north of Virginia. Lemme see; why it's a wamper."

"What's a wamper?" yelled the old boys together. "Is it poisonous?"

"Not a bit of it—it's just a common fox snake—one of the most harmless snakes there is."

"Not poisonous to touch?" cried Johnson.

"No," said Jack, looking out for a line to bolt on, "not poisonous to touch. Just poisonous enough to be a good joke on the boys—the old boys."

"Confound your skin," roared Johnson and Acornick, making a rush after Jack, who fled over the hill to the frog haunted marsh of the west side. Reaching boggy ground, where the fat fellows could not follow, he cried:

"I say, why didn't you hang on to that lunge and let the wamper go? You're a nice pair of practical jokers, you are. Why, we heard every word you said. You roared like two old fat fog horns. Thunder, when we get back to Toronto won't this make a good joke on the old boys?"—Toronto Globe.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

SONOMA, NOV. 1, 1890.

☞ Hereafter obituaries, funeral notices tributes of respect, etc., will be charged for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Communications upon matters of local or general interest solicited.

Communications designed to call attention to any matter of limited or individual interest will not be inserted unless paid for as an advertisement.

The author's real name must accompany all communications, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. This rule will not be deviated from.

The Sonoma Index-Tribune is one of the ablest conducted Republican newspapers in Sonoma county; its columns are filled with a variety of local matter, served in a bright, spicy and entertaining style, and its editorial tone is characterized by a high-minded liberality and fairness which wins for its opinions much consideration.

Our esteemed cotemporary, the Santa Rosa Democrat, thus speaks of the INDEX-TRIBUNE, for which we are truly grateful. But it is in error when it states that it is an organ of the Republican party. It is true its editor is of that political faith, but the paper he presides over and owns endeavors at all times to be independent and fair in its expressions, political and otherwise. The INDEX-TRIBUNE receives none of those good things in the shape of official printing and cold turkey from the State and county committees of the two great parties that usually goes to our Democratic and Republican cotemporaries. In other words we are, in so far as dollars and cents are concerned, in no wise directly benefited by the election of either a Republican or Democrat to a State or county office unless it be as a tax-payer and citizen.

The INDEX-TRIBUNE is essentially an organ of the People. Therefore, when we find a man, no matter what his politics may be, peculiarly fitted for the office he seeks we are not afraid to say so. The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE is independent in all things, neutral in nothing and is the organ of no party, clique or clan.

JUDGE DOUGHERTY.

The gentleman who heads this article was elected two years ago Superior Judge of this county to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Temple. This he has done with remarkable ability, and to the satisfaction of the Bar, litigants and the general public. Sonoma county has been extremely fortunate of late years in the selection of Judges. She has had her Jackson Temple, J. G. Pressley and last but not least Judge S. P. Dougherty. The two former, as an endorsement of their peculiar fitness for the position of judge, were re-elected for a second term. Following out this time-honored custom it would be no more than an act of justice to an upright, honest, capable and conscientious judge to re-elect Judge Dougherty to the position he has filled the past two years with so much honor and ability.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

One of the most important county offices to be filled next Tuesday is that of District Attorney. A. G. Burnett, the Republican nominee, has filled the position with great ability for the past two years, and following out a custom of our county politics he is surely entitled to a second term. Mr. Burnett has made one of the best District Attorneys ever elected to the office in this county and he has done his duty, his whole duty and nothing else but his duty without fear or favor.

J. W. OATES, the Democratic nominee for Superior Judge, is a well-known and successful lawyer of Santa Rosa. He is making a strong fight for the position. Mr. Oates is in every sense qualified for the position and would make a dignified, just and honest judge.

The Buccaneers of Old

Flaunted the skull and cross bones, their ensign, defiantly at the masthead. Your modern pirate, not on the high seas, but upon the high reputation of standard remedies skulks under various disguises. His hole and corner traffic has never to any degree affected Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, although that standard invigorant and corrective has long been the shining mark at which his shafts have been directed. Cheap local bitters, composed of fiery unrectified stimulants, with an infusion, or extract possibly, of some tonic bark, are still sometimes recommended as identical with, or similar to, or possessing virtues kindred to those of America's chosen family medicine. These perish speedily, while the great subduer and preventive of disease pursues it successful career, overcoming malaria, dyspepsia, nervousness, kidney troubles, constipation and rheumatic ailments, not only on this, but on many continents.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.

H. C. Petray, Democratic nominee for School Superintendent, is peculiarly fitted for the position he seeks. He is an intelligent, educated gentleman and a teacher of great experience. No better evidence is wanted of his ability as an educator than the fact of his being the principal of the Santa Rosa High School. Mr. Petray is essentially a self-made man. He was born on Russian river in this county 31 years ago. It was the ambition of his boyhood days to obtain a thorough education. As he was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth this was no easy task. But the self-reliant, industrious and hard-working young man, with that courage born of young American manhood, was equal to the emergency, and what with chopping wood, running a gang-plow, shearing sheep and "bucking straw" on a threshing machine in the San Joaquin Valley he earned sufficient money before he was twenty years of age to pay for a thorough collegiate course at one of our principal colleges, graduating therefrom with high honors in May, 1883, since which time he has been actively engaged in teaching in this county. Surely such a man is entitled to consideration at the hands of voters. The promotion of Mr. Petray to the School Superintendency of this county means everything to our youth. It will encourage our boys and girls to be self reliant, honest and industrious. It will instil into the minds of many a poor boy an ambition to rise in the world and emulate the example of Mr. Petray. His election will be one of the best lessons ever taught to the youth of Sonoma county.

What will Simmons Liver Regulator do? Make you well by restoring action to the liver.

LINCOLN'S MELANCHOLY.

His Sympathetic Nature and His Early Misfortunes.

Those who saw much of Abraham Lincoln during the later years of his life, were greatly impressed with the expression of profound melancholy his face always wore in repose.

Mr. Lincoln was of a peculiarly sympathetic and kindly nature. These strong characteristics influenced, very happily, as it proved, his entire political career. They would not seem, at first glance, to be efficient aids to political success; but in the peculiar emergency which Lincoln, in the providence of God, was called to meet, no vessel of common clay could possibly have become the "chosen of the Lord."

Those acquainted with him from boyhood knew that early griefs tinged his whole life with sadness. His partner in the grocery business at Salem was "Uncle" Billy Green, of Tallula, Ill., who used at night, when the customers were few, to hold the grammar while Lincoln recited his lessons.

It was to his sympathetic ear Lincoln told the story of his love for sweet Ann Rutledge; and he, in return, offered what comfort he could when poor Ann died, and Lincoln's great heart nearly broke.

"After Ann died," says "Uncle" Billy, "on stormy nights, when the wind blew the rain against the roof, Abe would set thar in the grocery, his elbows on his knees, his face in his hands, and the tears runnin' through his fingers. I hated to see him feel bad, an' I'd say, 'Abe, don't cry;' an' he'd look up an' say, 'I can't help it, Bill, the rain's a fallin' on her.'"

There are many who can sympathize with this overpowering grief, as they think of a lost loved one, when "the rain's a fallin' on her." What adds poignancy to the grief some times is the thought that the lost one might have been saved.

Fortunate, indeed, is William Johnson, of Corona, L. I., a builder, who writes June 28, 1890: "Last February, on returning from church one night, my daughter complained of having a pain in her ankle. The pain gradually extended until her entire limb was swollen and very painful to the touch. We called a physician, who, after careful examination, pronounced it disease of the kidneys, of long standing. All we could do, did not seem to benefit her until we tried Warner's Safe Cure; from the first she commenced to improve. When she commenced taking it she could not turn over in bed, and could just move her hands a little, but to-day she is as well as she ever was. I believe I owe the recovery of my daughter to its use."

The Pulpit and the Stage.

Rev. E. M. Shrout, Pastor United Brethren Church, Blue Mound, Kan., says: "I feel it my duty to tell what wonders Dr. King's New Discovery has done for me. My lungs were badly diseased, and my parishioners thought I could live only a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and am sound and well, gained 25 pounds in weight." Arthur Love, manager Love's Funny Folks Combination, writes: "After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, beats 'em all and cures when everything else fails. The greatest kindness I can do to my many thousand friends is to urge them to try it." Free trial bottles at E. Wegner's Drug Store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.

A LOCAL SENSATION.

A Man With Two Wives Comes to Grief.

Patrick McFadden, came to Sonoma some months ago and secured employment with Mrs. Robt. C. Johnson of Buena Vista Park as coachman. Shortly after his arrival he went to San Francisco and upon his return brought back with him a bonny bride, whom he ensconced in a cottage on First-street West. Strange to relate it was the identical house occupied about two years ago by a blockmaker and his wife named Smith, whose domestic felicity was disturbed one day by the appearance in town of a lady from Kansas, who claimed to be the original and simon pure wife of the hewer of stone, who did not stop to explain matters, but lit out instanter, leaving both woman behind.

Well, hear it was that the frisky Pat established his home, and it was his wont when his day's labors were o'er to hie himself from the ranch to his cottage home in this place where peace and contentment reigned supreme. Last Saturday, however, was a dark day for Mr. McFadden. He came to town about 11 o'clock in the morning to get the Buena Vista mail. He had been in town but a short time when he got an intimation from a friend that officers were after him, armed with a warrant charging him with bigamy. He thereupon borrowed $25 from one of our storekeepers and returning to the ranch, put up his team and was making preparations to leave when he was waited upon by Constable Sparks arrested and placed in the lock-up to await the arrival of an officer from San Francisco, who had telegraphed to arrest the man. The following morning McFadden was taken to San Francisco and placed in durance vile to answer the very serious charge of bigamy.

It appears that McFadden when he came to California from Philadelphia a year or two ago, left in that city a wife and five children. For a time he sent a regular monthly remittance to his family in the East. In time, however, this ceased and being unable to hear from her spouse, Mrs. McFadden No. One became suspicious and leaving two of her five children behind started for San Francisco. Upon her arrival in that town she discovered to her horror that her husband had married a second time and was living in this place with Mrs. McFadden No. Two. She thereupon lodged a complaint against the offending McFadden, with the result above described. McFadden's Sonoma wife is quite prepossessing in appearance, being yet in her teens. She has many sympathizers in this community while the much-married man is severly denounced for wrecking the lives of two good women. McFadden's chances for reaching San Quentin are very flattering.

Robert Howe.

In these columns will be found this week a communication from Hon. Robt. Howe, candidate for State Senator. We cheerfully give place to the same because the legislative record of Mr. Howe has been assailed by a disreputable self styled Republican newspaper. The communication is characteristic of the man. He does not indulge in vituperation and abuse, but simply states facts. We exceedingly regret that this Mutual Insurance bill business was introduced into the Senatorial contest by stupid and overzealous newspaper supporters of Mr. Rigsdale, for the purpose of injuring Mr. Howe, because all fair minded Republicans will admit that Mr. Howe's only fault lies in the fact of his being a Democrat. He is honest, conscientious, capable, a good neighbor and a kind-hearted friend, and as a legislator has always been found voting on the side of the people. We have known Mr. Howe for thirty years and know whereof we speak. Nothing is gained by assailing the record of such a man. It is insulting to Democrats and disgusting to all decent Republicans.

WM. FOWLER'S CONDITION.

The Victim of Last Saturday Night's Explosion Improving.

Wm. Fowler, who was so badly injured by the premature explosion of a three-pound can of powder while firing anvils in honor of the arrival in town of the Democratic county nominees last Saturday evening, is improving slowly and hopes are now entertained of his recovery. At the time the explosion occurred his brother, Robert Fowler, who was a few feet distant from the unfortunate man, was also badly burned about the face. Both men had the breath blown out of them by the force of the explosion, and when the powder smoke cleared away were found lying senseless ten feet apart. At first it was thought that both had been killed, but upon being picked up it was seen that they were alive. Restoratives were applied and in a short time the injured men regained consciousness. Upon examination it was found that Robt. Fowler, was but slightly injured, but his brother William had his hands and face terrible larcerated by pieces of the exploded can. He was also fearfully burned about the neck and face by the powder. He now lies at his home suffering great agony from his injuries. Dr. Vance, who is attending the sufferer, has great hopes of pulling him through. The explosion was caused by a spark from a Roman candle igniting the powder in the can.

The Ladies' Fair.

The Ladies' Fair at Union Hall, after a very successful run of six days, closed last Tuesday evening. Financially and socially it was a grand success, and Father Sullivan desires to return his sincere thanks to all who contributed to bring about that result, especially the ladies who had charge of the various booths and stands. The McDonell childrens' benefit on Monday night realized a neat little sum.

The following were the winning numbers of the ticket prizes:

Bed-room set, No. 241.
Milch cow, No. 268.
Gold watch chain, No. 298.
The pony, No. 210.
Gold ring, No. 249.
Silver castor, No. 26.
Tea set, No. 263.

Judge Rutledge of Santa Rosa won the $20 gold piece, Wm. Burns of Alameda the cow, Mrs. Scharden of San Francisco the bed-room set and John Sewington of Sonoma the gold watch chain. The names of the other winners are not known at this time. Among others who won costly prizes were Mrs. Keogh, Dr. Davis, Mrs. R. D. Moore, J. Biggins and H. Laux.

An Old Sore Healed.

I had a painful, annoying sore on my leg, near the knee, that troubled me for over two years. I tried various remedies, but the sore, instead of healing up continued to grow larger, until I began to look for a crutch. Through the advice of a friend, who was cured of a similar trouble, I took S. S. S., and in a few weeks was cured entirely. The sores healed up, and there is not even a scar left to mark the place.

MUTUAL INSURANCE BILL.

Senator Howe Tells How it was Defeated---Six Absent Members is What Did the Business.

The Mutual Insurance bill (Senate bill No. 211), was introduced by Senator Moffatt of Alameda. The insurance men came to the capital determined to defeat the measure, but despite their efforts it passed the Senate and also the Assembly, in the latter by a constitutional vote of 41 ayes, Mr. Rigsdale and myself voting for the bill at every stage of its proceeding. Hyde of Alameda and Sims of Nevada each entered a protest against the Speaker (myself), declaring the bill passed. Hyde claimed the right to appeal, while Sims, who voted for the bill, stated that he desired to change his vote. (See Assembly Journal, page 692).

Governor Waterman vetoed the bill, but it was again introduced in the Senate by Mr. Moffatt. This time the insurance men made no opposition in the Senate, but concentrated all their force in the Assembly. It was then, if ever, we wanted our men to stand up.

The third reading and final vote was made the special order for Friday, March 15th at 11 A. M. It is said, in extenuation of Mr. Rigsdale's absence on that occasion, that he received a telegarm announcing sickness in his family. The Sacramento railroad time table shows that the train for Santa Rosa was then, as it is now, 7 A. M. and 3:15 P. M. The Assembly Journal, page 974 shows that Mr. Ragsdale answered roll call at 10 A. M. on that day, that he obtained a leave of absence for the day (page 975). But he could not leave Sacramento until 3:15 P. M. The bill was acted upon at 11 A. M. Mr. Ragsdale was absent. I, myself, was there. But the bill received only thirty-six votes, six men having "fell down," and one that had previously voted against the bill came to us. It was thus that the measure was defeated and the will of the people thwarted. The San Francisco Chronicle, in speaking of the defeat of the bill, asked "Where was Ragsdale?

I am compelled in self-defense to show this record, as Mr. Ragsdale's party papers claimed that he was all right on the Mutual Insurance bill, which the records shows is not so.

I have served the people in both the Senate and Assembly and never before has my record been assailed. The article in the Sonoma Valley Republican is untrue in every particular. I have at all times told the people that my association with Mr. Ragsdale was a pleasant one and that he was a gentleman. I have made no changes but only drew the record. The letter of T. C. Maher is good, but it only applies to Senate bill No. 211, and the Sonoma Valley Republican ought to know that he could not be the author nor the introducer of a Senate bill, as he was a member of the Assembly.

My record is before the people and such desperate misrepresentations by an irresponsible newspaper can do me no harm.

THE PASS WAS SAVED.

Experience of a Brooklyn Party in Catching a Jay Street Ferryboat.

"I never went to the Jay street ferry except once," said a Brooklyn man, "but on that occasion I had an experience that I shall long remember. There was a lady from Chicago visiting at my house, and she had planned to go home on a certain day by a certain train. The fact is she had a pass, and unless she got that particular train the pass would expire before she could make use of it. My wife and I were going over to see her off. I tried my best to get them started early, but they were confident that there was plenty of time, and it was impossible to hurry them. At length, however, we got under way, with just time enough to reach the train if we had good luck.

"We took a car to the Broadway ferry and crossed over to Grand street. I am not sure that we might not have made better time if we had gone over the bridge and down Chambers street. However, at Grand street we took the little one horse car that runs across town through Canal street and down Washington street within one block of the ferry we wanted to reach. I never saw a car go so slowly in all my life, and the worst of it was that I was unfamiliar with the region through which we were going and with the route, and I couldn't tell how far we were from our destination.

"At length we came to a full stop, and looking out I saw a big truck blocking our way. There was no driver on it and no apparent reason why it might not be turned out of the way with very little trouble. But, to my dismay and disgust, the driver of our car calmly tied up his lines and perched himself on the dashboard of the car, just as if it was no matter to him whether he and we stayed there half an hour or not. And there was that pass expiring moment by moment—inch by inch, as I might say. I was growing desperately nervous. So I rushed out on the platform, pressed a half dollar in the hand of the driver and said:

"'Now I want you to get me to Jay street by such and such a time. It is very important. I must be there without fail. Can you do it?'

"'Indeed, and that I can,' was his answer, and before the words were out of my mouth he was off the car and turning the big truck out of the way. Then you ought to have seen how he spun along. He fairly whipped that horse into a run, and we tore down the street in fine shape. It must have been a new experience for the horse. Well, the upshot of it was that we got to Jay street just as they were hauling in the planks and closing the gates. I shouted to them to hold on, as two ladies were coming, for I had run on ahead and my companions had not yet entered the ferry house. The dock hands were good enough to wait for a fraction of a minute and the ladies just had time to step aboard as the signal to start was given. I didn't even have a chance to bid our friend good-by, except to shout it to her as the boat began to move out of the slip. But that pass was saved!

"The next time I take a friend to Jay street I shall allow an extra half hour's leeway, especially if we go by the street car that runs down Washington street."—New York Tribune.

The Ways of the Finest.

Cumso—Isn't an accident in New York a terrible thing?

Banks—Is it worse than an accident anywhere else?

Cumso—Of course it is. I saw a man get his shin scraped yesterday, and while he stopped to rub it a crowd gathered. Then a policeman rushed up with his club and three men were taken to the hospital in an ambulance.—Munsey's Weekly.

He Should Have Felt at Home.

There was once a Sir James Weir Hogg, who made a fortune in India, and whose wife, holding a distinguished position in London fashionable circles, gave splendid parties. It is said that a young blood, meeting one of the Misses Hogg at a ball, and not knowing her name, asked her if she was going to the party at the "Piggery." Her reply was: "Oh, yes; I am one of the litter."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Getting a Good Lobster.

Those who do the marketing and have to buy lobsters are often bothered to pick out a good one. Here is a good rule to follow: If you examine a lobster that was alive when thrown into the boiler you will find that the tail is curled up to the body, while one that was dead has the tail extended. In buying lobsters this is a good thing to bear in mind.—New York Journal.

"WHAT MEDICINES ARE MOST CALLED FOR?"

asked the reporter of an old druggist.

"Dr. Pierce's preparations," he replied. "They are sold under a positive guarantee that they will, in every case, give satisfaction, or the money is promptly refunded. His 'Favorite Prescription,' for all those chronic weaknesses, nervous and other derangements peculiar to women, is used with unfailing success. It cures weak back, bearing-down sensations, irregularities and weaknesses common to the sex, and being the most perfect of tonic medicines builds up and strengthens the entire system. The demand for it is constant, and I am conversant with scores of cases cured by it."

Returning after a few moments' absence, the venerable wielder of the pestle remarked, "The number of sarsaparillas and other, so-called, 'blood medicines' is legion; but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery outgrits them all and it is the only blood-purifier out of the many which I am obliged to keep upon my shelves, that is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all cases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it is refunded."

"In the line of Pills," remarked the old gentleman, "the little Sugar-coated 'Pellets' put up by Dr. Pierce lead all others, both in amount of sales and the general satisfaction they give my customers."

"Seeing is Believing."

And the best lamp ever made, like Aladdin's of old, a "wonderful lamp!" A lamp absolutely non-explosive and unbreakable, which gives a clear, soft, brilliant white light of 85 candle power! Purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light, more cheerful than either! That lamp is

"The Rochester."

And with it there is no smoke, no smell, no broken chimneys, no flickering, no sweating, no climbing up of the flame, no "tantrums" nor annoyance of any kind, and it never needs trimming. Its founts (oil reservoirs) being tough, rolled seamless brass, with central draft, it is absolutely unbreakable, and as safe as a tallow candle.

Only five years old, and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go, but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over 2,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps,—every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "THE ROCHESTER." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is near, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.

If you write and mention this paper, will tell you how to get one for nothing. Address Retail Department of Rochester Lamp Co., 37 Barclay Street, New York.

RAIN! RAIN! RAIN!

If there's one set of men who appreciate a good waterproof coat it is the farmer. He knows that a "Fish Brand Slicker" costs him less per year than any garment made. Did you know it rains or snows one day in three the whole year through? A "Fish Brand Slicker" makes every day a pleasant day to its lucky owner. Go anywhere with it in rain, hail, sleet, snow, or blow, it is wind and water proof. Costs less than rubber, and lasts ten times as long. Rubber is good for show days, but will rip in a week. If you want a coat for hard wear and hard weather, get the "Fish Brand Slicker." Every good thing has its imitators, so has the "Fish Brand Slicker." Look out. Beware of worthless imitations, every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. Pamphlets and illustrated catalogue free.
